The Catholic Church in Sudbury

By the time precious metals were found near Sudbury in 1884 the Catholic Church was already present thanks to the active Jesuits who had founded the Parish of Ste. Anne-des-Pins a year earlier. This church was to service mostly French-Canadians in an expansive area where the closest neighbour chapel was well over 50 miles away.

The mines, however, promised a catch of more ethnically diversified souls of those seeking spiritual nourishment. Persons started arriving in the Sudbury area from all over Europe so that an English-Catholic parish was inevitably formed.

The first major step was taken by Bishop Scollard in 1917. Dividing the congregation of Ste. Anne's, prospectives to the newly-to-be-built church attended Masses at Jubilee Hall. The upcoming parish was named St. Joseph's and would continue with this Patron's name till it was changed to Christ the King in 1935. (See also: https://christthekingsudbury.com/?page_id=211).

About the Marriages Index

The indexing of this work begins with the first marriage of Patrick Gowan and Charlotte Agnes O'Connor on Oct. 2, 1917 and concludes with that of John Wallace to Iris Doherty on May 13, 1942. Along with this list comes the names of parents of both bride and groom. If a name is unclear it is omitted from the work. The idea of parents' names being included is to solidify the identity of a couple and be a help to genealogy enthusiasts trying to collect family names. The date of marriage is a given but was sometimes excluded from the act or was illegible.
